

Summer temperatures heat retention in garage doors change how spaces inside the house feel throughout the day. The garage in particular holds heat longer than outdoor air and stays warm into the evening. Many materials inside warm gradually and cool again after sunset, creating noticeable differences between morning and afternoon conditions.