# Stages in a Business Litigation Law Case

Each business litigation case is different, but several phases are widespread.

- **Case Review and Lawsuit Initiation:** Lawyers evaluate the claim's validity, gather documents, interview witnesses, and draft court filings, whether initiating a suit or responding to allegations.

- **Discovery:** During discovery, both sides share relevant evidence, depose witnesses, and argue over admissibility, laying groundwork for trial.

- **Pre-Trial Proceedings and Settlement:** Pre-trial motions—including to dismiss or for summary judgment—are common, and settlement discussions often occur at this stage, with Aktas Law lawyers advocating forcefully for your interests.

- **The Trial Stage:** If the case cannot be settled, trial ensues, placing your business litigation lawyer front and center to advocate for your interests through examination and argument.

- **Post-Trial Proceedings and Appeal:** After trial, clients may need to pursue appeals or take further steps to enforce a judgment and secure damages.

Throughout, corporate clients expect lawyers to keep them informed, foresee issues, and tackle legal matters before they escalate.
