Standard drain snaking clears a path through a blockage, but it does not clean the pipe. In older Los Angeles plumbing systems where grease, mineral deposits, and years of buildup have narrowed the interior diameter of drain lines, a more aggressive approach is often needed. That is where hydro jetting delivers results that snaking simply cannot match. Coast to Coast Plumbing uses professional hydro jetting equipment that propels water at high pressure through drain and sewer lines, scouring the pipe walls clean and flushing out accumulated debris entirely. This method is effective on grease-laden kitchen lines common in LA restaurants and food service businesses, on tree root intrusions in residential sewer lines, and on slow drains throughout any property that has decades of buildup inside the pipe walls. Before any hydro jetting work begins, the team performs a video Best Plumber Los Angeles camera inspection to assess the condition of the line. This step is important because hydro jetting delivers considerable force. A pipe that is already cracked or structurally compromised may not withstand the pressure. The camera inspection ensures the right approach is taken every time.
